INDIANA UNIVERSITY
BLOOMINGTON, INDIANA

12/28/1946

Dear Lederberg,

I hoped to see you in Boston, but the need for completing some urgent work kept me from going there. No, I have done nothing on complex mutations in K12, since I have been all taken up with phage growth and teaching.

I wonder if the information on apparent linkage groups that you give me in your letter, is official enough so that I can include it in my review on bacterial genetics, which is finished and shall be sent to the editor in about 4 weeks. I certainly gave you, (or better, your work) the build-up you deserve.

I hope we can get to work on K12 resistance patterns soon.

Best regards,

Luria

"The segregation of bacterial characters is not at random. This suggests that there may occur linkage relations."