Dear Joshua –

Thank you for your information and for expressing your opinion on the possibility of higher sexual fusion rates in other bacteria than Escherichia coli.

About yeasts, do you know anything about sexual fusion concerning Torulopsis neoformans (often called – wrongly – Torula histolytica)? Genetic information on fungi pathogen for man are of special interest.

Do you take any interest in physio-pathology of man in connection with microorganisms? If so, let me know. Maybe I could give you a little information which might possibly be of some interest to you. I am fond of you because you are intelligent and your work is intelligent. You have a biological mind and not all investigators in the biological field have that type of mind — unfortunately.

Sincerely yours

H Lamb

I am glad to see that you are already a Professor.
