Dear Josh:

Thank you for sending me Tamm's address. I know him from my student days in Göttingen and was just looking for such old cronies in USSR from my theoretical physics days to draw their attention to the coding problem, and thereby indirectly to our new problems; the hope being thereby indirectly to strengthen the hand of the "right-thinking" biologists in the USSR. If you know of other suitable addressees in the USSR please let me know.

With kind regards

Yours

Max

REMARKS

Tamm is the only Russian I've ever met whom it was worthwhile talking to; but Norm Horowitz must know better.

Alikhanian is doing some reputable work on the genetics of actinomycetes.

The NIH puts out a "Directory of Medical and Biological research institutes of the USSR"-- perhaps ethere is some counterpart for physics.
