Dear Josh,

I met in mexico city my friend, the anthropologist Oscar Lewis (author of Children of Sanchez, + Five Families, which you have probably read). It turns out he is unhappy at Illinois and wants to find a place where he can build a group of fine cultural anthropologists. If we had such a place here, I would love to have him because he is one of the brightest guys I know. So I thought that Stanford may be interested in such an undertaking. Let me know if you think you can explore the possibility of ~~an~~ Stanford being interested.

Best regards + happy New Year,

Salva
