Dear Dr. Swan:

It was 29 years ago today you gave me a new lease on life. The years have flown by and for the most part have been very good years.

As you know I now have a pacemaker, but get along very well. I retired from my job last Oct. I've really enjoy the past year with no pressures or dead lines, just doing what I wanted to do. I spent a lot of time with my grandchildren (5 of them) I volunteer one day a week at the hospital, and travel every chance I get.

I talked with Dr Richter tonite. He is well and sends his regards.

I didn't hear from you last year after I wrote, but hope you are well and will have time to write this year. Please say hello to Dr Blount for me. I remember you both so well and so fondly.

With kindest regards,
Clarabell Pressley
