Morgan on genes. 1934.

Curiously no mention of Garrod! despite the title (which reflects the nominal designation of the Prize.)

It does ~~#~~ pict the genes protoplasm interaction that, I believe) dominated biological thought through the 1930's — even Beadle at first.

J.

P.S.

Troland was sheer speculation.

No expts. were suggested to test his hypothesis. Nevertheless his name was mentioned in early 40's around Columbia.
