April 20. 1929 Went to work in the morning feeling about as ~~usual~~ usual except for a slightly heavy head. When I reached the Rockefeller Institute I had a headache and a beginning backache (small of back) and pains in my thighs. This grew worse and it was evident that I was coming down with some infectious disease. About 10:30 a.m. I had finished my work and written up the records. So I went home, walking to the subway, and waiting ~~nearly~~ about an hour for a train at the Grand Central Station. At Hastings I took a taxi and reached home at about 12:30 & went straight to bed, where I stayed for several weeks. Dr. Russell & Dr. Cole were away on a tour of the Lt. D's work in the south. My temp. was 102+ (pulse 93)

Margaret called Dr. Parsons of Dobbs Ferry. He considered the ailment as probably "flu". He left some "aloid" tablets for the following two nights, but had no trouble with sleeping during illness. Had "ammoniated quinine", pompous stuff, also, at first.

On Tuesday Dr. Tillet came out from the Rockefeller Institute Hospital to see me, and later Dr. Russell, Dr. Cole and Dr. Tillet came out. Specimens of urine & blood were taken. The albumin in the urine rose to about 2½ grams per liter & fell rapidly. Dr. Russell concluded that the disease was in all probability yellow fever. One day Dr. Connor of the United Fruit Company, formerly of the Canal Zone, came out in consultation. On another occasion an ambulance was brought out from New York, but the decision was not to move me. Personally, I did not feel very sick or apprehensive.

My diet was only orange juice for a while, and then orange juice and vegetable soup. Naturally I lost much weight.

The office staff sent me some lilies-of-the-valley and a book, The Seven Dials Mystery by Agatha Christie. Dr. Geo. E. Vincent sent me a collection of magazines, mostly English, - Punch, etc.

May 4, 29. Dr. & Mrs. Simon Flexner gave a dance at the Rockefeller Institute and Margaret & I were invited. Declined on account of my illness.

May 7. The birthday of Margaret and Ruth.

May 11. Ruth ~~gave~~ had a birthday party.

Among her birthday presents was a croquet set from Gertrude Henderson & a tennis racquet from me.

May 27. With Dr. Russell's approval I returned to work at the laboratory (R. Institute).

In June Dr. Stewart examined my heart and took an electrocardiograph tracing. Heart was normal except for a little "left preponderance" which probably was present before the y. fever attack. Have myself noticed frequent dropped beats on numerous occasions, - perhaps due to fatigue.

June 18. Attended a luncheon in honor of Dr. Chagas at India House.

Dr. & Mrs. Paul Hudson had dinner with us on the verandah in Hastings.
