Dear Josh,

We have finally been refused the grant for this year. I have resubmitted for next year, but think that the chances are slim. This has at least one advantage which is that the situation is now clear and makes a decision much easier. I think that I should stop working on the subject and ~~the~~ at the same time stop working without a framework. I am going to switch over to research in the environmental area a few years before I planned to. It seems now that recycling of sewage will be my future area. There is no opening as yet, but as the subject becomes more and more important there should be some possibility soon.

I would love to get your reaction to this. A letter to Dneko and Ron on the same subject is on its way.

Best regards to Marguerite and the children,

Yehudit
