"Young Endeavour" ....

I have really enjoyed reading your account of what you've been about. I wish more of my own graduate students were more audacious — and they might be with these examples.

I do have to pick a nit out of your (very kind!) reference to me at Yale. Ed Tatum did not "shanghai" me (more the converse — I went after him!), and I was never a medical student at Yale. From what I know now, if I had been rather than at P&S, I might well have completed my M.D. In retrospect it is curious that no one suggested that option. Perhaps I was not qualified, and I did not know enough to seek it!

Sincerely,

Joshua Lederberg

PROFESSOR JOSHUA LEDERBERG
Department of Genetics
School of Medicine
Stanford University
Stanford, California 94305

Encs.