Memo from JOSHUA LEDERBERG To: RKM

Adumbrations of Adumbrationism.

Thank you for the reminder. (How ripe the fruits of your trees for unconscious plagiary — I must have read that chapter a dozen times, and forgotten that was my source for the James reference!)

The Berglu E. reference was "The Writer & Psychoanalysis." 1950. Sorry - I thought it was on there.

In a parallel vein I am enjoying the perusal of Fiction + the Unconscious by S.O. Lesser / Beacon; '57.

And you a computernik in 1954!

[X]

PROFESSOR JOSHUA LEDERBERG
Department of Genetics
School of Medicine
Stanford University
Stanford, California 94305

Memo from JOSHUA LEDERBERG To:

Too bad you can't overlook the Asilomar conference on DNA bio-hazards which must be setting some new precedents in social process for science. So much is being crystallized in the pre-"trial" publicity I am a bit disheartened about the prospects.

By comparison the Jensen Affair must seem like old hat --- the more as it is already on the boundary of biology and social science. But I suspect there is a niche for it in your files. Perhaps also for that thin one called recantation.

As always

P.S. Thanks for the pictures - adorable!

PROFESSOR JOSHUA LEDERBERG
Department of Genetics
School of Medicine
Stanford University
Stanford, California 94305