Dear Dr. Lederberg:

I was extremely pleased and honored to discover that I was the recipient of the Professor Joshua Lederberg Award. This award will undoubtedly help me to achieve my future goals of pursuing a keen interest in molecular biology at Harvard and, ultimately, of conducting scientific research.

A year and a half ago, your kind response to my initial letter of inquiry concerning a possible research position for a high school student at the Rockefeller University was very encouraging. I am happy to say that I spent a very productive year in the viral oncology laboratory, headed by Dr. H. Hanafusa, during my junior and senior years and all of last summer.

The great experience has led me to seriously consider doing graduate work at this prestigious institution. However, even if my interests change in college, I will always be grateful for the great honor which has been bestowed upon me.

Thank you very much.

Sincerely,

Lucy Shigemitsu
