

THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND 21218

DEPARTMENT OF BIOLOGY

August 23, 1983

Dear

I just received from Russ Doolittle of the University of California, San Diego a chain letter originated by Professor Ito in Japan. This letter is an attempt to mobilize world scientific opinion in favor of total nuclear disarmament. Professor Ito's idea is that if each scientist will send his or her own version of the letter you are now reading favoring universal nuclear disarmament to ten of his or her colleagues, asking them again to spread the chain, that an extraordinarily large number of signatures could be accumulated in favor of this vital move. Could you please send your letter to ten colleagues (no doubt there will be some overlap among lists) and a copy of your letter to Professor Y. Ito (Laboratory of Applied Entomology and Nematology, Nagoya University, Furo-cho, Chikusa-ku, Nagoya, Japan)? I enclose the list on which my name appeared as well as my list of ten.

Sincerely,

Dr. Christian B. Anfinsen

CBA:djh
Enclosure

Copy to: Prof. Y. Ito

R. Doolittle's list

G. M. Fuller	University of Texas
C. B. Anfinsen	Johns Hopkins
M. G. Rossmann	Purdue University
M. R. Bernfield	Stanford University
A. Kropf	Amherst College
J. M. Buchanan	Massachusetts Institute of Technology
S. Magnusson	University of Aarhus
J. J. Pisano	National Institutes of Health
E. Zuckerkandl	Linus Pauling Institute
A. C. Wilson	University of California, Berkeley

C. B. Anfinsen's list

B. N. Ames	University of California, Berkeley
G. G. Ashwell	National Institutes of Health
R. L. Baldwin	Stanford University Medical Center
P. Berg	Stanford University Medical Center
K. E. Bloch	Harvard University
P. P. Cohen	University of Wisconsin
H. E. Umbarger	Purdue University
L. Bers	Columbia University
M. Kac	University of Southern California
A. A. Penzias	Bell Laboratories