I trust that the black box concept has been thought to include reconnaissance devices in dummy flights, or in rapidly manned flights, flown by the respective country according to a program

(yearly by national guidance records) and not by inspecting country.