Dear Josh,

Good to talk with you by telephone.

The enclosed release explains both the delay in this promised follow-up and how things stand on CHUC: I am trusting that Jetterm (on part) holds the key to many doors.

No news out of Stony Brook...

On things Oxbridgean the recommended list is:

F. M. Cornford, Microcosmographia Academica (1908 and many subsequent editions). Timeless wisdom on academic/bureaucratic life and, by implication – indicators of the shifting nature of Oxbridge at its worst.

A. H. Halsey and M. Trow, The British Academies, 1974 is mainly pedantic survey research.

J. H. Newman, On the Scope and Nature of University Education, 1872 and many subsequent editions. Not really germane to your concerns, but the greatest meditation on universities to come out of Oxford.

Looking forward to seeing you soon.

Andy
