Dear David:

With all the time we share in encouraging others to help the university, may I remind you to thank others for what they've done. As you aptly say, "I'm afraid of talking to myself." However, you do make clear such an example of devotion and altruism: your example is a beacon to all others.

The occasion does give me the advantage once again to be able to say how much I appreciate the privilege of our association.

Thank you,

Joshua
