Collage Review

Thank you for the invitation. If the deadline were still in mid-November, I would like to offer a piece on "learning more and more about less and less." This would concern the disaster of over-specialized education (and thinking) in our colleges and universities. It would not be a replay of "Two Cultures" but show what is happening even within the sciences through disciplinary fragmentation.

If the deadline must be sooner, I suggest submitting a version of "The new literacy" (enclosed) oriented to the appropriate audience.

(over)

Finally, if time is still more than late spring (1983), I will have been collecting material for a piece on "The Learning Curve," which will attempt a realistic appraisal of our strategies and goals in responding to that challenge. This contribution would have the advantage of being closer to my curricular expertise.

Let me know your pleasure!

Joshua Lederberg
President
The Rockefeller University
New York, N.Y. 10021
(212) 360-1234

Joshua Lederberg
President
The Rockefeller University
New York, N.Y. 10021
(212) 360-1234